This is the first time I've written a letter to anyone in the last 6 months. I'm sure a lot of you have heard about what has happened over the last six months, but I have to say that I'm overwhelmed with thankfulness for the love and support that I've received. The thought of us even being able to make it to Australia is inconceivable. I am going to be honest with you and say that I'm not feeling at all like myself. I keep going back to this phrase in this old book that my grandad brought over from Ireland. I feel as though it's an old wise friend of mine who has given me a kick in the pants and told me that things aren't going to be the way that I want them to be. Perhaps the difference between an old man and me is that I will have much more to live for in the future. Perhaps that is why I keep going back to this phrase. So you see I am at the point in my life where I need to give something back. So in the name of the fallen, the wounded and the maimed, I would like to give back by being the best person that I can be. To my teammates. A few weeks ago I made a statement about the state of our team and how we had lost our way and were headed for the bottom. If I was honest I was just looking for something positive to write about in my first letter. Well I think I've found it. I know that some of you will be with me as I continue on
