New to Photoshop, you may want to know where to find the features you need. In this Photoshop Elements tutorial, we'll go through every feature in Photoshop Elements to show you where they are. GIMP has the same features, but it is probably much easier to find the features you need. Here are some of the ways to find the features you need. 1. Choose Edit ▶ Photoshop Elements 11 ▶ Edit ▶ Adjust. Click the Green Arrow on the right. Click the Adjust button at the top. When the Adjust Panel opens, click the Live Edits button on the left. Click the Spacing tab. You'll see the following options. 2. Click the slider to set the point spacing. 3. Click the space on the left and drag to set the letter spacing. 4. Click the slider to set the line spacing. 5. Click the arrows to set the style of line. The default is Solid. Clicking the Convert to Style button on the right converts the line to the style you selected in step 5. 6. Click the arrow on the right and choose Line Style from the list. 7. Click the Convert button on the right to convert the line to the style you selected. 8. Click the Convert to Style button to convert the letter to the style you selected. 9. Click the arrows to choose the type of line you want. You can choose between Dash Dotted, Dash Dashed, Solid, Dotted, Dashed and Dot Dot Dot. 10. Click the Convert button to convert the line to the type you selected. 11. Click the Red Dot to change the line color. 12. Click the Convert to Style button to convert the letter to the style you selected. 13. Click the arrows to choose the type of line you want. You can choose between Arrow, Arrow Dash Dotted, Arrow Dash Dashed, Arrow Dot Dot Dot, Arrow Dot Dot and Arrow Dashed Dot Dot. 14. Click the Convert button to convert the letter to the type you selected. You can choose between Arrow, Arrow Dash Dotted, Arrow Dash Dashed, Arrow Dot Dot Dot, Arrow Dot Dot and Arrow Dashed Dot Dot. Q: How does Windows RunAs work? Please see this article: I understand that the Windows service has a token that is linked to the user account and allows for running a process in elevated mode. I also understand that if a process is running as SYSTEM the correct token is not used in order to prevent this. I'm confused about the Windows service token and how it is applied when it runs in Administrator mode on a machine. How does this work? I mean, if it's running as a service how does it have a token associated with it and which user account runs it? A: The service runs in LocalSystem (which may be impersonating a user, but is not the "real" user), which does not have privileges to perform administrative functions. The administrator login account has permissions, and so the service runs as the administrator account. When you use Run As Administrator on the service, it's told to run as that user. No token change is performed. Indonesian military officials have announced that the reclusive Usulutan terrorists, who have been holding hostages for 18 months, will be freed. The two-part deal also details how Usulutan, an anti-government movement made up of former members of the al-Qaeda-linked terrorist group Jamaah Islamiyah, will dissolve. It comes as Jakarta seeks to stabilize the volatile region, which has in recent years faced a surge in internal violence. As well as the Usulutan militants, the men were in possession of a small amount of weapons and other equipment that included hand-held rocket launchers and explosives. "We would like to thank the people of these two provinces... Usulutan has surrendered," military spokesman Teguh Wibowo told reporters at a news conference in the capital, Jakarta. Foreigners freed Earlier, Prime Minister-elect Djoko Widodo said the government would release the two foreigners in exchange for Usulutan members, whom he described as "hostage takers", Indonesia's state news agency Antara reported. Security officials said the gunmen would hand over 10 hostages in two groups and would be taken to Jakarta, where an unspecified number of foreign hostages would be released. Mr Widodo said the release of the foreigners was the "biggest part" of a
