UNITED SERVICES AUTOMOBILE ASSOCIATION, a Foreign Corporation, Defendant. No. 345PA84. Supreme Court of North Carolina. June 4, 1985. James J. Gilmore, Edenton, for plaintiff. Tuggle, Duggins, Meschan, Thornton & Elrod, P.A. by Robert H. Elrod, Greensboro, for defendant. Per Curiam. Defendant's assignments of error related to the trial court's submission of the issue of punitive damages to the jury are overruled. In determining whether punitive damages should be awarded, the primary consideration is whether the defendant has acted with a state of mind characterized by willfulness, malice, or other culpable conduct. Moore v. Finch, 301 N.C. 235, 271 S.E.2d *287 425 (1980). The evidence must be sufficient to permit the inference that defendant's conduct was the result of a wilful, intentional act or omission or an entire want of care or concern. Id. Whether punitive damages should be awarded is ordinarily a question for the jury. If there is an absence of evidence tending to show defendant's wilful, wanton, or oppressive conduct, punitive damages may not be awarded. However, there may be situations in which the evidence is clear and leaves no room for reasonable differences of opinion by reasonable minds as to the conduct in question. In such situations, the question of punitive damages is for the court. Id. Assuming arguendo that the evidence is sufficient to find defendant's conduct was wilful, intentional, and reprehensible, nevertheless, the punitive damages award must be vacated because the trial court failed to submit to the jury the issue of whether defendant's conduct was attributable to defendant as its "employee, agent, or servant." In view of the close relationship between the facial nerve and the parotid gland, surgeons must be able to comprehend the anatomy of the nerve and the effect that dissection will have on it. In this study, the authors reviewed a series of facial nerve specimens to identify the most common type of facial paralysis. The relative frequency of the various types of paralysis resulting from intratemporal and intrapetrous (superior or inferior) facial nerve lesions is presented. The authors emphasize the key importance of identification of the facial nerve in all approaches to the middle ear, parotid gland, and skull base.34 F.3d 1078 NOTICE: Ninth Circuit Rule 36-3 provides that dispositions other than opinions or orders designated for publication are not precedential and should not be cited except when relevant under the doctrines of law of the case, res judicata, or collateral estoppel.UNITED STATES of America, Plaintiff-Appellee,v.Fernando MIGUEL, Defendant-Appellant.
