Tip If you're not a fan of the Flash-based movies that the DVD Creator produces, it's easy to convert the DVD into a QuickTime movie file instead. Simply go to Adobe's website (www.adobe.com) and download the free Flash

Media Encoder program. If you'd like to convert the DVD to a format that has a much better quality and file size, try the free DVD-to-HD DVD encoder, available at ____. Figure 9-12. The DVD Creator gives you several options for creating Flash and QuickTime-based movies. Use the menus to create a new video, import a previously created Flash file, or use the DVD-to-Flash or DVD-to-QuickTime conversion programs to create a movie for your site. #

Video Editing

The big news in the multimedia world for a while has been the emergence of the "video iPod," a tiny little video-playing device that you can strap to your belt and carry in your back pocket. So what happens when you decide to toss this little video player aside and want a real video player for your site—a movie that can be embedded in your page?

---

You need to find a _real_ video editing
program, and not just a movie player. Luckily, when you're creating
your image-editing
programs, you really

This tutorial shows you how to edit images with

Photoshop, and how to make it as fast and intuitive as possible with the help of the shortcuts in Elements. Tutorial Contents You can find the tutorial here.

Photoshop First, let's create an image to work with. Start by creating a new document in Photoshop. Set the size to 1200 x 700. The new document needs to be rectangular. Select the Rectangle tool from the tools panel and draw a rectangle in the upper-left corner of the document. Select and then add the Rectangle Marquee tool (M) to the selection. Right-click and choose Make

---

Selection. The selection is now a rectangular marquee in the upper-left corner of the document. Move the mouse until the circular selection is the size that you like. Select the Create a new file option and click OK. The new document opens. Use the Rectangle tool to draw a rectangle and select it (with the L key) to enter the selection tool mode. Set the size to 8 x 8 and align with the left edge. Drag the vertical line that looks like it goes through the sides until it reaches the bottom. Drag the line to the right until the top is aligned with the bottom.

Select the Background tool (B) and choose a solid color for the background. Erase the rectangle (E) and the line. Select both the line and the background. Do this by pressing the Ctrl key and clicking anywhere on the line and the background. Use the Move tool (V) and

---

place the image
anywhere in the document. Use the Move tool (V) and drag
the image to the left.
You should see your
do the same with the
image on the right.
Repeat until you have the image centered.
Finally, add the text

---

"Photoshop". If you'd like a bit of design to the text, draw a text box around the text. Click OK to exit the selection tool. Erase the selection. Create a new file. Use the Solid Color (not the Fill option) and select R=255 G=255 B=255. This text color should be white but may be yellowish or magenta depending on your camera. Use the Rectangle tool and draw a rectangle around the text. You can use guides if 05a79cecff

---

What's New in the?

[Genes of the human glucocorticoid receptor
and their products]. The
is the primary transcriptional

regulatory unit of the non-genomic signaling cascade activated by glucocorticoids.

Mutations in the glucocorticoid receptor gene are associated with human steroid resistance and impaired function of this receptor. The receptor is a ligand-activated transcription factor consisting of three major domains: a N-terminal ligand-dependent DNA-binding domain, a hormone-binding domain that interacts with glucocorticoids, and a C-terminal transactivation domain. The N-terminal domain of the receptor recognizes the glucocorticoid-response elements of target genes and is essential for gene transcription, while the DNA-binding domain interacts with glucocorticoid receptor-responsive elements and controls the specificity of glucocorticoid target gene expression. This review summarizes the domains of the glucocorticoid receptor and their products, including the ligand-binding domain and steroid-binding domain, their functions, mutations in the glucocorticoid receptor gene, and the steroid-resistant syndrome. The present invention relates to a method of the preform injection molding of a thermoplastic material. Injection molding machines of thermoplastic materials have become well-established in the art. They are basically distinguished by two features: on the one hand, the injection cycle takes place in a hot state with a plastic material being in a fluid state (the melt) and, on the other hand, it is the case that in the case of the injected plastic material it is the aim to arrive as quickly as possible at a homogeneous solid product. In particular,

---

---

---

European patent applications EP 0 697 804 and EP 0 728 008 describe heating and solidifying in situ the injected material for a rapid cooling (injection molding in a hot state). In these known methods, the molten material is added to a die cavity via a connecting channel. The injection die must be completely filled (overpressure) in order to ensure that the material injected into the die cavity is forced back along the connecting channel and onto the outside wall of the die. By this specific injection of the molten material to the die cavity, it is possible to produce stable structures with external dimensions and with a core structure with a hollow inside that is as homogeneous as possible. Such homogeneous structures are of great importance for a variety of

---

applications, for example for components
in
