Game developers are working day-and-night to collect these real-life player data - aiming for the best fidelity possible from the new technology to deliver the best football experience possible. All Real-Life Player Data Collected and Combines into FIFA 22 Gameplay The aim of this project is to achieve the highest quality with the most human-like and immersive experience possible. Utilizing this data enables you to create never-before-seen animations and improved physics-based gameplay features for any player. The data captured for FIFA 22 is focused and in-depth. This will give you the best experience in all areas of the game. Perfect Impact Data Collecting player data for FIFA 23 and beyond is a massive challenge. The task is made harder when the football standard and detail vary from match-to-match. This requires the data collection engineers to constantly iterate to find out how they can best capture impact data from the game for the next generation. A New Engine One of the key features for this project is the use of a completely new technology called the Impact Engine (a name that may make sense to hardcore fans of FIFA, but not necessarily to everyone else). The Impact Engine was specifically designed to simulate the impact of a player's body with the ball, ground or other players. To ensure that this new technology works perfectly for FIFA, a large amount of time was given to iterate and test the gameplay to ensure it will produce the most realistic results. This will be reflected in the experience gamers will have in FIFA and may influence how the game is played. FIFA Creator Controlled Match-to-Match Quality Being able to play matches in controlled conditions at the Elite Studio in London offers the ability to experiment with data at different stages of the creation process, as well as being able to play and test matches where players are analysed in detail. This is a much more controlled environment than having to provide data for two or more matches. The goal of the Elite Studio team is to continue progressing FIFA through its own design studio and to continue experimenting with different ideas and concepts, and then test these with the new data infrastructure. As a result, FIFA 23 and beyond may look and feel different from FAs and previous games. FIFA fans will be thrilled to see where this project takes them. New Fixtures FIFA tests the Impact Engine in a range of different scenarios – from different players on
