At the hospital, the surgeons removed what is called a cobblestone tumour, a type of thyroid tumour. Cancer of the thyroid gland is a fairly common cancer, more often occurring in women than men. Although thyroid cancer is one of the most common cancers diagnosed in women, most of these tumours are benign – and only about 2-3% are malignant. Maria's doctors are confident that she will be well in due course. They feel that removing the tumour is the best course of action given her age and gender. Thanks for using our services and pointing this out to us. We've revoked all the IPs that were reported and we're in the process of reconfiguring their IPs so they don't get assigned new ones. The average time for this process is about 48 hours; I think since we made it a no-fly zone after the problem first started happening, we may have been preempted by some customers shifting their customer's IPs and getting them assigned new ones; this is sort of a "red carpet" for hackers to fly in and attack our customers' servers. We also do a site analysis and reclassify any IP that was misclassified by an anomaly site report, and those IPs usually get assigned new IPs quickly. The reclassification will happen sometime within the next 24 hours; we'll email any customer that got repointed as an anomaly. It's normal for the site analysis to take a while to actually work on the IPs, however. We had customer's actually using our services and realizing their IPs had been infiltrated, that's the unusual part; it seems that our customers didn't have their IPs blacklisted beforehand because we didn't see any individual IPs go up in the last few weeks, so we hadn't put anything in our system to cause that. We didn't know about the blacklists until now, so that's why we couldn't warn them. ~~~ johnmoore Thanks for letting us know what you are doing. ------ taylodl I'm curious to
