My understanding of the concept of a contact list is that it is simply a list of a person's phone numbers, email addresses and names, which can be used to contact that person. For example, if you had a person named John Doe, in this example you would have his number, email and name. While phone numbers change and email addresses change from time to time, I would suspect that this contact list would never change - it would remain the same forever. This is a point of personal opinion, but I think this view is correct. However, there is a fairly new concept on the iPhone: People. Within this concept, there are various groups that you can add a contact to, so that you have groups of people instead of a single contact list. For example, you can add a group of co-workers to your contact list want the beginning and the end of the text input to be at the top and bottom of the input, and for the text to not start if the input is shorter than 30 characters, and end if the input is longer than 70 characters. A: If the input is longer than 30 characters and shorter than 70 characters, you will have to use Javascript to watch the length of the input and do the calculations. It can be done with a simple counter on the input which you can start at 0 and increase by 1, when the counter reaches 30, you set the counter to 0 and delete the last character, if it reaches 70 you set the counter to 0 and delete the first character. Q: Как сделать выдвигаемое поле меню по умолчанию? Подскажите как сделать так, чтобы при открытом меню, если нажать кнопку стало по умолчанию одно поле по умолчанию и оно было выдвинуто обратно в нужное место. Например при d0c515b9f4
